

High Frequency words.

It is important to revisit high frequency words regularly. If your children is having difficulty retaining high frequency words, it may be useful to use a multi - sensory approach. This can be done in a number of simple ways, using materials that you have at home.

Ask your child to write the word in the air. Encourage them to say the letters/sounds out loud as they do so.

Write the word on your child's back. Let them do the same to you.

Let your child write the word in salt/sand/glitter.

Make the word using materials you have at home.
